TILDEN'S NEW GAME.

McLIN'S STATEMENT THE FIRST SUN—THE PRESIDENT'S RELATIONS WITH McLIN AND DENNIS—EMPHATIC CONTRADICTIONS OF McLIN'S STORY.

[Special Cor. N. Y. Times.

WASHINGTON, April 26. The McLin confession in regard to what the agents of Samuel J. Tilden are pleased to call the Florida fraud has, since the arrival of today's New York Times, which publishes it exclusively, been the one absorbing topic of conversation in Washington. While it is thus freely commented upon, however, it creates no excitement, and it is not believed by leading politicians of either party that it will be followed by any practical results. Still, there can be no doubt since the publication of the statement that it is but the opening gun in a campaign upon the White House, which will be continued by Tilden and his men for some time to come, at least until the adjournment of Congress. For this reason, and for this reason alone, it is regarded as important.

It is now believed that Morton is only one of a number of Tilden emissaries in the South, and that the next gun in the campaign for the casus of the "great reformer" will be fired from Louisiana. The letter which Secretary Sherman is said to have given to Wheat and Anderson, the Inspectors of Election in the Feliciana parishes, will in all probability play an important part in any disclosures which may come from New Orleans. What purports to be a copy of that document was exhibited here to-day. It gives the two Inspectors strong assurances that they will be rewarded if they do their duty, but does not intimate what the duty referred to is.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECOGNITION OF McLIN AND DENNIS.

The statement was often repeated, that Mr. McLin and ex-State Senator Dennis are actuated in what they have done by bitterness of feeling against the Administration for its inattention to them and disregard of their claims, will not bear investigation. The fact is, Mr. Hayes has from the first evinced a partisan desire to do everything he could looking toward the recognition of both the gentlemen named, and toward satisfying all their demands upon him. To this end he appointed Mr. McLin to the position of United States Judge of New Mexico, and after his nomination had been rejected by the Senate proposed to renominate him, but for some unknown reason McLin is said to have refused the offer. A statement contained in a dispatch from Florida, to the effect that ex-State Senator Dennis had received several notes from Mr. Hayes, seems to be true to a certain extent. The notes in question were innocent ones, however, and looked only toward the recognition of what Mr. Dennis regarded as his claims. As first the gentleman named, wanted a consular appointment, but failing in this, he sought a position in the Treasury Department. An investigation in that department reveals the fact that the following note, written in lead-pencil on a sheet of note-paper, bearing the words Executive Mansion printed in blue, was among his recommendations:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON,
April 18, 1877.

DEAR SIR: I am reliably assured that L. G. Dennis, of Florida, would make a capital Special Agent of the Treasury. I respectfully desire that his claims should have your favorable attention. Sincerely.
R. B. HAYES.

HON. JOHN SHERMAN, and others.

Upon this indorsement, which is certainly all that he could have desired, Mr. Dennis was appointed Special Agent of the Customs Bureau of the Treasury, and sent down to examine Collectors of Customs at various ports in the Southern States. After about two months' service, however, he was removed from the place, and has not since been reappointed.

McLIN'S STATEMENTS UNTRUE.

There are a number of statements in the confession which are so manifestly untrue as to be worthy of passing attention. Chief among these is that part of the statement in which Mr. McLin says: "I was shown numerous telegrams addressed to Gov. Stearns and others from the trusted leaders of the Republican Party in the North, insisting that the salvation of the country depended upon the vote of Florida being cast for Hayes. Those telegrams came from those to whom I have been accustomed to defer—the Chairman of the National Committee and the man who was the nearest personal friend of Mr. Hayes and who had conducted the canvass. These telegrams also gave assurance of the forthcoming of money and troops, if necessary, in securing a victory for Mr. Hayes." The fact is that Gov. Stearns received no telegrams of the character indicated from Mr. Zachariah Chandler, the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, or from any other person. Nearly every communication, certainly every important communication, which came from Northern political managers to Florida, was addressed to William E. Chandler, and was written in a private cypher known only to that gentleman. Any information of the contents of such dispatches could only be given by him.

EMPHATIC CONTRADICTION OF HIS ALLEGATIONS.

It will also be noticed, by reference to McLin's confession, that he states that in Jefferson County, in a certain precinct of which Mr. J. Bell was Inspector, 180 votes were surreptitiously added to the ballots and counted. No charge was made as to this fact before the board. The confession of J. Bell, since made to me, discloses the fact that had the 219 votes from this county added to the Archer return, viz. the 74 votes stuffed in the box in Leon County, and the 180 votes surreptitiously added in Jefferson County, aggregating 393 votes, been rejected, and the Democratic rejected precincts which were excluded for irregularity and illegality, contrary to the decision of the Supreme Court, been received and counted, Mr. Tilden would have carried Florida. In regard to so much of this statement as concerns Mr. James Bell, the gentleman referred to, who is now in Washington, states to your correspondent that the allegations made by McLin are in the main untrue, and in detail unworthy of credit. Mr. Bell says further that he has no recollection of ever having conversed with Mr. McLin in regard to the subject in question. He has, however, spoken to two other persons confidentially regarding the vote of Jefferson County. Mr. Bell admits that shortly after the election it was currently stated in Florida that a change of 100 votes favorable to the Republicans had been made at the precinct at which he was a clerk—but as Inspector, he stated in McLin's confession. This report, Mr. Bell states, grew out of the vain boasting of some of the Inspectors or their friends, who, for purposes of their own, perhaps in the hope of personal advantage, claimed that they had rendered great service to the party by making the changed name. Having an inkling of the truth of the matter, Mr. Bell, according to his own accounts, at once proceeded to investigate all the charges relative to the change of 100 votes, and discovered to his own satisfaction that no change had been made and no fraud committed at the polls in question. In proof of this statement, he alleges what your correspondent knows to be a fact, that Dr. Bellinger, the Democratic United States Supervisor at the poll in question, stated that he did not know of any frauds having been committed at that poll. Further than this, Mr. Bell states that he as Clerk, Dr. Bellinger as Supervisor, and three Inspectors—five persons in all—checked off the name of each voter as he appeared to cast his ballot, and that at the close of the poll, it was discovered that all lists counted exactly, and that the number of names checked by them was the same as the number of ballots contained in the box.

THE CONTRADICTION CORROBORATED BY A DEMOCRATIC SUPERVISOR'S SWORN TESTIMONY.

Mr. Bell calls attention to the testimony of Dr. Bellinger, the Democratic Supervisor, taken by the select committee of Congress on the President al election in Florida. Being questioned by Mr. Wallis, a Democratic member from Ohio, Dr. Bellinger recognized a list of names of voters at the precinct under discussion that was made under his supervision. Mr. Wallis then asked him from what the list was copied. His answer was: "It was copied from a roll that I kept of all the Democratic voters whom I knew, or I was satisfied voted the Democratic ticket at Precinct No. 7. I kept a full list of all the voters, and this is taken from that." The testimony then continues as follows:

Q.—Then comprise all the names of Democratic voters at Precinct No. 7 at the last Presidential election? A.—Nearly all of them; there were four more Democratic votes cast, but I was not positive who cast them, and I left those four names out.

Q.—You are positive that with the exception of those four names the list contains all the names of Democratic voters at No. 7? A.—Yes, Sir; that is all; those parties are avowed Democrats, and I have heard no one intimate that they voted any other way.

Q.—State the number of them. A.—I did not count them; I think there are 140 here.

Q.—Then, so far as you have knowledge of it, the Democratic vote of the precinct was 1531 A.—It was.

Q.—Do you believe that number is the true one? A.—I know it was, for I assisted in the counting.

Q.—How many Democratic votes were returned from that precinct? A.—One hundred and fifty-three; the returns are concordance with the count.

From the statement of the Democratic Supervisor it will be seen, Mr. Bell contends, that his story is correct, and that no fraud was committed at the poll of which he was clerk. The statement of Mr. Bell in connect on with the confession is worthy of considerable weight, from the fact that he, as all men, having been treated with marked injustice by the present National Administration, in that he was unceremoniously removed from a small office, the duties of which he faithfully performed, would, if anything, be so biased against Mr. Hayes as to support, if possible, instead of condemning his untrue, that portion of the McLin confession which refers to him.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMENTS.

Prominent Republican members of Congress, and prominent leaders now in Washington, only regret the present agitation because they think it may hurt the party in the approaching campaign, and will furnish material for Democratic stump orators to make themselves merry over and to incombe. It is more than probable, however, that the Democrats in the House will blunder over the proposed investigation of the McLin confession, which is already being agitated, as they have hitherto done in more important matters. A few of the Democratic Representatives are in favor of a Congressional investigation, with McLin as the star actor and Senator Dennis as end man. It is stated that there is a great deal of jealousy among them as to who is entitled to the management of the farce.

The Press says that a large business is done in "horse-flesh" in Portland at this season of the year. Almost every week brings a car load of fine looking horses to Portland from Canada and the West. The heaviest of us come from the West and are brought there to supply the trademen's demand.

Messrs. E. S. Winter, asa. S. J. & C. W. French are driving their logs from Jerusalem Township to Kingfield. They are having a fair pitch of water. The Jerusalem Company have finished their drive on Bog Brook, it taking about one week.

Rev. G. B. Hannaford of Rumford, was made the victim of a cowardly assault by two ruffians in Farmington, Tuesday evening. While going from the church to his home he was attacked simultaneously by one in front and one behind him, and barely escaped serious injury from the blows which they inflicted. The affair creates quite a sensation in that orderly community where incidents of this character rarely occur.

Kennebec.

At the recent term of the Supreme Court at Augusta eighteen divorces were granted five on petition of the husband and the remainder on petition of the wife.

The Journal says that Samuel Graves of Manchester, has been arrested for unlawful fishing by nets and seines. He had been tried and will spend thirty days in jail.

The house occupied by Joseph Frost of Harmony, was burned Thursday week. Insured.

Hiram Burrell of Skowhegan drove seven head of young cattle through New Portland, Wednesday, to his pasture in Lewiston—the earliest instance of stock being turned away to pasture ever known in that section. Many of the farmers have commenced work on the land and considerable wheat and oats have been sown.

Waldo.

Since December Justice Sawyer of Searsport, has sent forty tramps to jail.

Waldo county is quarrelling with its jailor about charges for prisoners' board and a suit is likely to be the result.

On Wednesday, Judge Dickerson, holding court at Belfast, quickened the memory of a witness in a liquor case. It has been the dodge of witnesses in such cases, under instruction of counsel, to testify that they "couldn't remember" that they had bought liquor to drink any thing.

DESPERATE ARITHMETIC.

The recent exposures of the enormous proportions of the Southern Claims already introduced in Congress, have naturally startled the people of the North. The compact speech of Mr. Reed brought the facts and figures home to the public mind, and since then, Mr. Hunan, of Indiana, has had spread upon the pages of the Congressional Record, in connection with his speech of last Wednesday, a complete list of the bills of this class introduced, the tables occupying twelve columns of the fine type of the Record, and covering hundreds of millions of Southern claims. The Southern Democrats have felt it necessary to invent something to break the force of these exposures, and Money, of Mississippi, recently smuggled a speech into print without delivery, to be circulated as an off-set to the Southern raids, in which he handled figures with the freedom of a Munchausen. On Friday Representative Phillips, of Kansas, overhauled Mr. Money's arithmetic as reported by telegraph as follows:

At the close of the session, Phillips of Kansas, in a personal explanation, called the attention of the House to a speech of Representative Money. The Congressional Record contained a speech this morning by Representative Money of Mississippi, printed on leave without delivery. That speech purported to give a list of all bills introduced by Northern men during the Forty-fifth Congress, and which Money estimated aggregated one billion five hundred and sixty-seven millions one hundred and twenty thousand dollars. In that list Money had attributed to Phillips of Kansas a bill asking an appropriation of one billion three hundred million dollars.

Phillips said he knew they could do remarkable things in Mississippi, especially in the way of arithmetics at elections, but he scarcely thought they were equal to this. The Democrats were determined to prevent Phillips from speaking, but he persisted, and finally showed how substantial a basis there was for this analysis of bills presented by Northern men. He proved that the bill introduced by Phillips was for the survey of the Mississippi river, appropriating but thirty thousand dollars. Phillips could not understand how Money could make out of this thirty thousand dollars one billion three hundred million, nor could he understand how it was to be classed in the list of Northern claims, when it was for the improvement of the Mississippi river south of St. Louis, nearly every dollar of it to be expended in the Southern States.

The Democrats became excited at this unmasking of a marvellous lot of figures, and insisted the question was not one of privilege, and Finley of Ohio thought it an outrage for a gentleman to rise to a question of privilege to make a comparison between statements in a printed Democratic speech and the truth in the case, and for this remarkable confession Finley came near being hooted out of the House. Phillips did not let the ex-Confederates off so easily, but he reminded those who were taunting him lest they ought to remember that the North had expended five billions to suppress the interpebition, and that the most of the money was expended in the Southern States.

ANDREW JOHNSON'S MONUMENT.

The monument erected over the grave of ex-President Johnson by his children will be unveiled May 23. The monument is twenty-six feet in height. Its base of granite, with a plinthide, is nine feet six inches square at the ground. Granite piers rest on each of the graves (that of Mrs. Johnson and the ex-President) lying side by side, over which is sprung a granite arch, and upon this the monument rests, leaving an open space under the arch in which the graves are visible. The arch and piers has been ingeniously stated—without to the art cramed of arms the questions as to such questions involving inalienable rights inherited and held in trust for posterity—but strove for the Stars' sovereignty which their fathers left them, and which is their duty, if possible, to transmit to their children. Let the monument teach that heroism derives its lustre from the justness of the cause in which it is displayed and let it mark the difference between a war waged for the cyber-like purpose of conquest, and one to repel invasion, to defend a people's liberties and rights, and to maintain their laws and liberties. Such was the war in which four heroes, fell and thereas the crown which sparkles with the gems of just virtuous civil righteousness, with a glory undimmed by any motive of aggrandizement or intent to inflict pain on others We pointed to posterity and bids to be followed, and was securely for the verdict of mankind when knowledge shall have dispelled misapprehension and delusion. It is not unreasonable to hope that mature reflection and a closer study of the political history of the Union may yet restore the truths promulgated by the patriots of 1861 to 65 and our long and bloody war; if however, it should be otherwise—

> Then raise our heroes' graves shall speak
> In language mute, the answer it:
> "And shall our children rise from dust
> Their sires, but, thinking on our day,
> 'T will love debase them to subdue."

Yours faithfully,
JEFFERSON DAVIS.

DECORATIVE ART. Doubtless many of our readers will be interested in the announcement elsewhere by the Boston Society of Decorative Art, the object of which we find set forth as follows by the Traveller

The Boston Society of Decorative Art has been organized in connection with the New York Society, with the object to raise the standard of design in household and manufacture, and to induce a more general appreciation of artistic excellence. It proposes to work in this direction by opening rooms for the exhibition and sale of executed work; to encourage deserving talent by lending good models and books on the principles of art decoration, to students; by enabling those who wish to take advantage of schools already existing or classes hereafter to be established; by encouraging the production of designs, and obtaining orders from manufacturers, dealers and others, and in other ways furnishing a market for the sale of articles of artistic work done by those who do not make it a profession. The entrance fee has been fixed at five dollars, and all who sympathize with the objects of the society are requested to become members. Other contributions will also be welcome, as it is requisite at the outset to raise liberal means and dollars. The President of the organization is Mr. Augustus T. Perkins, the Secretary Miss Shimmin, and the Treasurer Mrs. George J. Fisk. Rooms have been opened at No. 48 Berkeley street, where the society is now ready to receive and offer for sale contributions of art works.

The Tribune remarks: "Mr. Jefferson Davis writes an impassioned plea in defence of the Confederate cause to Georgia, where they celebrate a Confederate memorial day. The North, having heard it, is expected to resume cheerfully the business of letting by-gones be by-gones."

Miss Frances E. Willard, the well-known temperance lecturer, and Miss Mary B. Willard, widow of the late Oliver A. Willard, editor of the Chicago Post, have assumed control of that paper as editor and publisher respectively.

GLOVER'S CATCHES.

[From the N. Y. Graphic.]

Glover—Congressman from Missouri last fall—Just give me a chance at these Republican robbers; I'll ketch 'em as fast as you can ketch minnows!—

Democratic Congress—Very well; there you go; lots of traps, firearms and ammunition. Now let's see you make capital for our party.

Glover [enthusiastically]—Oh! you bet I'll do it, gentlemen! I'll ketch the Blank Republican plunderers! "Set a Glover to ketch a thief," you know the maxim remarks. Ha! ha! ha!

[Three months pass, and finally out of the dull rumble comes a voice:]

Glover—I've got him! I've got him!

Dem. Congress—Got who? Got who?

Glover—Got a feller! Ketched him stealing!

Dem. Congress—Hurrah! Hurrah! Is it Hayes?

Glover—No. It's one of the clerks of the House.

Dem. Congress—Republican?

Glover—No. Democrat.

Dem. Congress—[Cheerfully, but not rapturously]—O—h!

Glover [two weeks later]—Here he is! I got another feller!

Dem. Congress—Hiirrah! Hurrah! Steal-in'em!

Glover—Regulation! wasted lots of money!

Dem. Congress—Hurrah! That's a good haul, Republican?

Glover—N—no—he's a Democrat—Your doorkeeper.

Dem. Congress [Approvingly, but sadly] —A—h! Uh,—a—see here, Glover —next time you fetch a Republican.

Glover—Y—yes, I—I will.

Glover [a month later]—Ha! I got him! I ketched him stealin'! Safe $.0,000 from contingent fund! I got him!

Dem. Congress—Hur—Republican, Glover.

Glover—Uh—uh—a—well—this 'un—I—no—he's a Democrat—a—he's a member of Congress.

Dem. Congress [going for him with wrath ily] —One of us, you undiscriminating scoundrelly Duke!

Glover—Y—yes—I—I—couldn't help it! It! It's one of you'uns!

[They shake him up till some of his teeth are heard rattling around in his boots, and his collar bone loosens, when he gets away.]

Glover [three days later]—I got him now! I ketched him in the very act of stealin', and we got the money away from him—$5,000.

Dem. Congress—Groaning]—You infernal spy and poltroon? G—h—well —hell as the worst! Is it a Democrat?

Glover [Holding the door open ready to run, his face flushed with shame, and great beads of perspiration standing on the outside of his hat]—Oh, good gentlemen, spare me, spare me! [turning to run and letting his prisoner go, as he dodges all over of inkstands and custodes]—It's the Democratic Sergeant-at-arms.

Fourteen Democratic Members [pulling down their vests and shouting Filbert the tenth]—I move that the office of Investigator be declared vacant!

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY IN GEORGIA—JEFF. DAVIS AGAIN GLORIFIES THE LOST CAUSE.

A despatch from Macon, Georgia, states that Memorial Day was celebrated with ceremony there on Friday last. The Confederate Monument corner-stone was laid by the Grand Masonic Lodge of Georgia. The second Georgia battalion, other military and civic organizations formed in procession, and the largest audience ever known on Memorial Day was present. The day was generally observed at Atlanta and other places. The stores were closed, and the citizens and soldiers proceeded to the cemetery and decorated the graves. An oration was delivered by Gov. Colquitt and the following letter from Jefferson Davis, in response to an invitation to deliver the oration, was read:

JEFF. DAVIS' LETTER.

Let not any of the survivors impugn their faith by offering the pen tender plea that they believed they were right.

Let posterity learn by this monument that your commemorate men who died in defence of your rights. Each name has been ingeniously stated—without to the art cramed of arms the questions as to such questions involving inalienable rights inherited and held in trust for posterity—but strove for the Stars' sovereignty which their fathers left them, and which is their duty, if possible, to transmit to their children. Let the monument teach that heroism derives its lustre from the justness of the cause in which it is displayed and let it mark the difference between a war waged for the cyber-like purpose of conquest, and one to repel invasion, to defend a people's liberties and rights, and to maintain their laws and liberties. Such was the war in which four heroes, fell and thereas the crown which sparkles with the gems of just virtuous civil righteousness, with a glory undimmed by any motive of aggrandizement or intent to inflict pain on others We pointed to posterity and bids to be followed, and was securely for the verdict of mankind when knowledge shall have dispelled misapprehension and delusion. It is not unreasonable to hope that mature reflection and a closer study of the political history of the Union may yet restore the truths promulgated by the patriots of 1861 to 65 and our long and bloody war; if however, it should be otherwise—

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The Times are too hard to start new newspapers. Ex-Congressman Lynch has been unable to make his new paper the Washington National Union a success, and he has sold it to the Washington Daily Post an able Democratic paper.—Belfast Age.

But the Post is a new newspaper than the Union, having been started only a few months ago; so that a more reasonable explanation is that the public prefer even a Democratic paper with brains, to a pretended Republican sheet without.

This is the opinion of one of the largest dry-goods firms in New York, the house of Lord & Taylor:

"Of all the methods open to the merchant for advertising his business, an experience of nearly half a century enables us to unhesitatingly declare in favor of the newspaper. It is without exception the most economical, persistent, painstaking and successful canvasser any business firm can secure for the purpose of bringing their goods to the attention of the consumer."

Sunset Cox considers it a crime to pin a handbill to an American flag, but to fire a charge of grape through the flag and its bearer, makes a man his long-lost brother. Lowell Courier.

Of the Maine delegation Messrs. Hale, Frye and Reed voted against the repeal of National Bankruptcy Law. Mr. Powers voted for the bill and Mr. Lindsey was absent.

NOTICE.

DISTRICT OF MAINE, ss.

April, A. D. 1878.

This is to give notice, that on the 27th day of April, A. D. 1878, a warrant in bankruptcy was issued against the estate of JOHN L. SMITH, of Dexter, individually and as a member of the firm of J. L. WHITE AND YELLOW CORN.

Mr. J. Averill, of Paw-Paw, Mich., asks an answer from any correspondent to the following question: "What is the relative value of white and yellow corn for feeding purposes, and especially for the fattening of pork?" I am sure I do not know, and I do not know any one who does know so fully that we can accept his knowledge with entire confidence that he is correct; and for the reason, in the first place, that we have no accurate analyses of Indian corn to the extent necessary to enable us to decide whether white or yellow corn contains the greatest amount of fattening or carbonaceous substances. In the second place, no doubt that soil, situation, climate, and latitude affect Indian corn, as they are known to do wheat; and Indian corn, like wheat, would be pretty sure to take up more mineral matters from the soil, and more nitrogenous ones from the soil and atmosphere together, on strong, rich land, and under a long, warm summer climate, than on a poor soil, in a short, cool summer. We know most Southern corn absorbs more water in cooking than Northern corn, makes better bread, and, if we accept the accounts of travellers as facts, we know the national tortillas of the Mexicans to be made of Indian corn solely, and after being baked, to be tough and leathery, as buckwheat cakes are.

So far as Illinois is concerned, nine-tenths of all the corn grown is of the yellow varieties, the preference for white corn being confined to the southern part of the State; but those dainties of corn bread having Southern antecedents are sure to choose white corn meal, as those of Eastern are quite as sure to select yellow meal for culinary purposes. If our information is correct, the larger share of the corn grown in the South is of the white varieties, the white ones only being used for bread, as the yellow ones are cultivated and preferred in the North. Generally speaking, then, on these grounds, I think it may be safely assumed that Northern corn contains most oil and starch, and Southern corn most mineral and albuminous matters; that the former will produce the largest increase of adipose matter in the shortest time, and the latter will increase the size of the bones and muscles most in the same way.—Country Gentleman.

THE VALUE OF HEN MANURE.—Should all the droppings from the roosts by hens be carefully saved in barrels, and every spring and fall mixed in compost heaps with any good soil or muck from swamps, and kept a few months, its value for any crop is equal to Peruvian guano, and may, I think, be estimated at fifty cents per fowl per annum. From fifty hens I have about ten bushels of the pure hen guano during the year. What I mean by November to April, I compost in the spring with soil. First, I spread soil in a circle to the depth of three or four inches, then I spread hen manure about an inch deep; then I spread another layer of soil, till the heap is completed, using about four times the bulk of soil that I do of manure, the last layer being soil. The top of this compost heap I make flat to catch the rains; then I cover with any refuse or straw, then place some sticks of wood or boards against the covering to keep it in its place, and in two or three months it is ready for use, having become thoroughly incorporated with the soil, but as the season for planting is then nearly past, I leave the heap till the next season, when I use it with what I compost in November. Perhaps it would be better to make a compost in March, where the climate will admit, and use the manure for crops planted the last of May or early June; but I can discover no loss by keeping it till the next season. A gill of this compost in a hill of corn will be equal in effect to half a shovelful of manure.—Woodberry News.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.—The size of a garden, where there is plenty of land to appropriate to it, should be in accordance to the wants of the family in the way of vegetables and fruit. Properly laid out and plots set apart for each crop, it is surprising what a deal of stuff can be obtained from a little space of ground. As an example, down the different vegetables that should be provided for a family say, of eight persons:

1. Early and late peas to afford a daily supply from four to six weeks.
2. An onion bed of the white variety.
3. Beets.
4. Lettuce sown in borders and set out from plants forced in hot beds.
5. A small bed of Horn carrots.
6. Half a dozen stools of rhubarb for early pies and stewing.
7. Two small beds of bush beans, to be planted at intervals.
8. From forty to fifty hills of Lima beans.
9. The sweet corn crop.

This is very important, and say twenty hills should be planted every ten or twelve days up to July, which will furnish a supply until frost comes in October. Next the Lima bean and the sweet corn should not be included in the garden space; ground should be set apart for them outside.

HEREFORDS FOR THE WEST.—At the Michigan Central yards recently, we saw twelve Hereford bulls, which had been purchased for the ranche of Hurd, Plumer & Holmes, located at Pueblo, Colorado. These bulls have been selected from the herds of a number of Hereford breeders in Canada. Amongst them is the one that won the premium this year as a two-year-old at the Centennial. These bulls are to be used for crossing on the native stock now on their ranche and should prove serviceable, as they have been selected by a thoroughbred Hereford man, and who is not anything else. The Herefords ought to do well in Colorado. The mountainous country of this breed is at the foot of the Wasatch mountains, on the low hilly country known as the Mendip and Cotswold range of hills; and hence with somewhat of the same surface for a range in Colorado, we may look for this breed giving a character to the stock of that section which may grow it to one with peculiar characteristics. The Herefords have long been distinguished for the very high quality of their beef, and the improvement of this native breed has been going on for three-quarters of a century, not without beneficial results.—Mich. Farmer.

USING STRAW FOR FUEL.—The Russian Mennonite settlement in Nebraska has taught American farmers a new knowledge at least. Usually in the prairie States of the West, there is considerable suffering in extremely cold weather from lack of fuel. Farmers have been known to burn their corn from necessity. People have frozen to death on some of the terrible prairie storms. But the Mennonites introduced simple furnaces for burning straw. One of these furnaces only costs five dollars for the iron work, the rest being made of brick or clay. By proper use a ton of straw will go more than half as far as a ton of coal for fuel. The Mennonites tie the straw into hard rolls, or press it into hard cakes, so that it burns as wood, and gives off as much heat. One of these furnaces, supplied with fuel only three times a day, will keep a Mennonite house warm the whole twenty-four hours, besides cooking. As coal is costly and wood still more so, and as most Western farmers have heretofore wasted their straw, the Mennonite in an of preparing and using it for fuel is an economy which will prove of great value to the prairie States, and it is rapidly extending among the Americans. A cooking stove of economical invention will speedily supply handy machines for pressing the straw into cakes, and improved stoves for burning it.—Detroit Telegraph.

CHEESE FROM SOUR MILK.—I know from experience how the tired and overburdened farmer's wife often racks her brain for something to fill out her meagre bill of fare, when time is precious and every step counts. I have often so benefited myself by a recipe or suggestion from some one more experienced, that I add my mite, hoping it will be tried by those who are in the habit of making cheese from sour milk. Take a pan of thick milk after it has been skimmed, place it over a kettle of boiling water, after cutting it in squares with a knife. Let it stand until thoroughly heated, then set aside until cool, and pour into a colander or sieve to drain. When the whey has drained off, turn into a pan, pour on plenty of cold water and let it soak two or three hours. Drain again, and knead with a fork mash fine, season with salt to taste, and stir in a few spoonfuls of thick, sweet cream. Beat well with the fork and turn into a dish for the table, putting it on ice or in a very cool place before serving.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

The most economical application of solid farmyard manure, is to apply it to the land as it is made, or in a green state, as some call it, in preference to allowing it to accumulate in a large quantity, by which much of the best parts are lost by decomposition and evaporation, however they may be attempted to be preserved

A little six-year-old says the eagle on Bland's new silver dollar "looks like as if he tryin' to light on a hot stove."

Lady (calling on intimate friend, who is unmarried and only has one servant): "Is your mistress at home, Sarah?" Sarah: "No, mum." Lady: "Then will you kindly say that I called to see if she would come and spend the evening with us?" Sarah: "Oh! go, mum! Am sure she can't; 'cause it's my turn out."

AN ITEM FOR MOTHERS.—A very little boy had one day done wrong, and he was sent, after paternal correction to ask in secret the forgiveness of his Heavenly Father. His offence was passion. Anxious to hear what he would say, his mother followed to the door of his room. In hoping accents she heard him ask to be made better and then, with childlike simplicity, he added: "Lord, make ma's temper better, too."

At Sandusky, Oh., in a recent case, a juryman who couldn't read or write, got a friend to prepare him a lot of "yes" and "no" ballots, putting one set in one vest pocket and the other in another, so that he could tell which way he was voting. But he got so absorbed in the testimony that when he came to vote "yes" he forgot which pocket the right ballot was in and kept on voting "no" against the solid vote of his associates, until one of them found out how the matter stood, and the vote was made unanimous.

HEARING AND SMELL IN INSECTS.

All that I have observed leads me to believe that any sensitiveness shown by insects to sound is due to a diffused sensibility to vibration rather than to a differentiated sense like our own. If any one, an hour after his kitchen has been left in darkness and quiet, will enter it as gently as possible, without shoes or light, but then, having no contact with anything, other than the unavoidable one of his sock-inclined feet with the floor, will speak suddenly and sharply, I believe he will find that not a cockroach shows any signs of alarm. If, on the voids, he should drop something heavy abruptly, or enter with his usual step in boots, there is a stampede; but even then nothing to compare with the commotion caused by the introduction of light.

As to smell, there can be no doubt it seems to me, that it is a very much different sense; residing, I suspect, to a great extent, in the antennæ, and probably capable of detecting qualities in substances of which our analogous sense gives us no warning. The lebaucoon flies are a striking example in point. One of the larger of these I caught on the window in the supreme shine this afternoon, and I noticed, as often before, the incessant play of his antennæ as he hunted restlessly to and fro, apparently in search of larvæ, or pupæ, concealed under the wood. As the prey of this tribe are always so hidden, and the egg is accurately laid, therein, by means of the long ovipositor, without the aid of sight some other sense, in great perfection, must guide them in their quest. But here is a quite conclusive instance:
